THREE TAKEN TO INSANE HOSPITAL

Harry Routzhan, Ed Wilson and Tom Worthington Are First Patients
From Here After Change.

ARE TAKEN TO MADISON TODAY

Wilson Declared Insane After Attempt to Commit Suicide—Worthington "Town" Character.

J. Ed Wilson, Tom Worthington and Harry Routzhan are the first insane patients from Rush county to be lodged in the insane hospital at Madison. They were taken there today by Sheriff Clata Bebout and Dr. W. S. Coleman. The State was redistricted by the governor recently and Rush county was placed in the southeastern district with the hospital at Madison. The change was made on account of the crowded condition at Richmond. The three men have been adjudged insane for some time but they could not be admitted to Richmond as the men's ward was full.

J. Ed Wilson, living in North Main street, who has been an invalid for some time, was declared insane by a lunacy commission one day last week. It was brought out in the testimony at the hearing that Mr. Wilson attempted to commit suicide one week ago last Saturday night.

Due to his illness and his occasional "flighty" periods Ed Wilson has been watched almost constantly for fear that he would do himself bodily harm. It was said at the hearing that on Saturday night he attempted to take his life by cutting his throat with a razor. He slashed his throat and a place in his leg but did not succeed in committing suicide. His injuries were not very severe and it is thought that he will recover.

Mr. Wilson has been suffering with locomotor ataxia for many years and has been compelled to use crutches. Much of the time he has been wheeled around in an invalid's chair. His mind has been affected for some time but he did not get dangerous until recently. Physicians say that his ailment was largely due to the excessive use of morphine.

Harry Routzhan will be remembered as the farm laborer who terrorized the family of Earl Downey near Arlington two weeks ago. He threatened to kill all of the members of the family and the neighbors as well. He brandished a razor and threatened to kill Sheriff Bebout when the official went to arrest him. He was captured only after a chase and after he had been knocked down by a blow on the head. Routzhan is a religious fanatic and declares that he is a good Christian man.

The passing of Tom Worthington will mean the passing of a town character who has been a familiar sight on the streets of Rushville for many years. He has been probably the most "jailed" man in Rushville. Many are the times that he has been lodged in the county bastille on the charge of drunkenness. He has been the bane of every mayor's life, who has faced the problem as to what should be done with Tom Worthington.

Tom Worthington was once a prosperous citizen. He was an expert lumber measurer and amassed a good bank account before he started on the downward road to destruction. He first began by drinking a little and the habit gradually grew on him until he became the "town" character and drunkard. He has been sent to the county poor asylum a number of times. He has been employed at restaurants and saloons doing odd jobs for a number of years.

Although he may have been declared insane, Tom Worthington often displayed rare wit, even though he was intoxicated at the time. One day he entered the Daily Republican office and handed a copy of the issue of the previous day to a reporter. He pointed out that there was an article on "cleaning up" on the front page. He said that if the paper was sincere, the company should give him a dime to have the heavy beard removed from his face.

BABY FALLS UNDER HORSES' HOOF

Reckless Auto Driver Runs Too Near Horse's Head, Causing it to Rear Backward.

CHILD TOPPLES TO PAVEMENT

A reckless driver from the Reeve garage was looking at the mechanism of his automobile, when his auto ran past and struck the head of a horse driven by Mrs. Herbert DeWitt at the corner of Main and Second streets, Saturday evening. The horse stopped suddenly and reared back, causing a small baby sitting on the front seat of the carriage to tumble out and fall to the hard pavement. The baby was not seriously hurt, but had the horse stepped back one foot, the child would have been crushed or possibly killed. The old family horse stood perfectly still until the baby was taken from its dangerous position. Mrs. DeWitt had an infant in her arms and was almost helpless as her child lay under the carriage. The autoist was called back by Policeman McAllister and warned to be more careful or he would be compelled to answer in police court.

TRIAL OF ALLEGED BURGLARS IS BEGUN

Orvil Black and John Cochran Are Arraigned on Charge of Entering Grocery.

STATE'S CASE IS OUTLINED

Orvil Black and John Cochran, charged with breaking into the Court House grocery store last Monday night, were arraigned in police court this afternoon at two-thirty o'clock. The attorney for the defendant asked for a change of venue and the case was turned over to City Attorney Howard Barrett. It was after three o'clock before the change was perfected and the case was well under way. The two men have already pleaded not guilty.

There were thirteen witnesses in the court room which were to testify in the case. Prosecutor Dennis O'Neil, in the opening statement for the State, outlined the case. He said that the State would prove that the defendants were the two men seen last Monday night by the night-watchman and were ordered home; that they then carried a can of molasses, but wished to go to the Wolcott drug store to get a can of gasoline; that they did not find the can of molasses on the street as they stated and that there was one can of molasses of that brand found missing from the store.

SAYS HE WILL NOT BE A CANDIDATE

James E. Watson Gives His Political Views in an Interview at Washington, D. C.

FINDS CAPITOL QUEER PLACE

Roams About White House Halls,
Discovering That Old Trysting
Places Are Taken.

A staff correspondent of the Star writes the following interview with James E. Watson of this city:

Former Representative James E. Watson, who carried the gubernatorial banner of the Republicans of Indiana in the campaign of 1908, has definite and interesting views on political topics, which he expressed in an interview here. Mr. Watson has been meeting up with old acquaintances around Washington during the last few days.

The change from Republican to Democratic control in the House of Representatives caused him a lot of trouble. First, he made a dive for the speaker's rooms, absent-mindedly expecting to find "Uncle Joe" within, just as he had done countless hundreds of times during the last eight years. When he opened the door and beheld a new and strange set of faces in the reception room it flashed upon him that "Uncle Joe" no longer enjoyed the dignity of station and pomp of circumstance that were once his.

"Where does Mr. Cannon hang out now?" he asked of one of Champ Clark's menials. He was told to go down a certain corridor a certain distance, turn to the left and go down another corridor a certain distance and he would run into "Uncle Joe's" den. He followed the directions and in a small office, with one room, without any messenger except one that he pays out of his own pocket, the erstwhile czar of the House was found leading the life of a quiet hermit and placidly smoking a cigar.

Mr. Watson next headed down the main corridor toward the gorgeous suite of rooms where William B. McKinley, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, once held forth.

"Where are you going, Jim?" asked a friend who met him.

"Going to see McKinley," was the response.

"Land sakes!" broke in his friend. "Don't you know the Democrats are in control of the House now? They have routed the Republicans out of all of the gorgeous rooms with fine carpets and glittering tapestries and taken possession themselves. You will find McKinley in a little cubby hole on the third floor of the House office building, about a quarter of a mile from here."

"It seems to me," said Watson, as he headed for the House office building, "that the mighty have fallen considerably since I used to be around here."

With even more than ordinary frankness Mr. Watson discussed politics, with particular attention to the Indiana situation.

"Taft will be renominated," he said. "Nothing can beat him for the nomination. Senator LaFollette will not have a corporal's guard, figuratively speaking, in the national convention."

"Will Mr. Taft be re-elected?"

"I never make predictions more than a year in the future," he replied. "The presidential election is more than a year off. Therefore, it would be a violation of my rule to prognosticate on that subject. Excuse me, please."

Mr. Watson stated positively and unreservedly that he will not be a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination. (Continued on Page Four.)

WEDDING WAS LARGE AFFAIR

Five Hundred Guests Attended Marriage of Miss Bessie Goldman and Abe Schneiderman.

HEBREW CEREMONY WAS USED

Probably First Time in History of County That Such a Wedding Occurred.

Probably the largest wedding that ever occurred in Rush county and the only one here in which the old orthodox Hebrew ceremony was used took place last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goldman living north of Arlington, when their daughter, Miss Bessie Goldman, became the wife of Abe Schneiderman of Indianapolis.

The wedding and the feast following, were most pretensions. Fully 500 guests were present, including several from this city and surrounding towns. The people came in buggies and automobiles and one man said the Goldman home resembled a place where a public sale was taking place. The Arlington band furnished the music and played on an average of one piece every three or four minutes. The Thomas sisters also of Arlington rendered several selections on the violin and piano.

The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Messing of Indianapolis and took place about 7:15 o'clock in the evening. The wedding occurred in the yard and Miss Goldman was led from the house supported by her father and mother. The bride was followed by Mr. Schneiderman, who was also supported by his parents. The ceremony was spoken in Hebrew and was the original, as used for hundreds of years by this race. The marriage took place under a large canopy of ferns and palms which was supported by four young men, friends of family. While the Rabbi was speaking a chanter rendered several beautiful selections.

The guests were served to a wedding feast which consisted of 21 ducks, 1 goose and a fatted calf. The Hebrew butcher prepared the feed and had been at the Goldman home several days before the event. One of the customs of the Jews follow out was that of eating with their hats on. This was also done while the wedding was taking place.

For the present the newly married couple will be at the home of her parents, but expect later to move to Indianapolis.

CHANGE IS RUMORED.

It is rumored at the local office of the C. H. & D. that an important change in the time table will be made soon which will take two trains passing through Rushville off. It is said that the westbound train due here at 5:58 in the evening and which comes back through here at 8:21 will not be run further west than Connersville.

Mrs. Colvin was 50 years old and was known in this city, having visited her son on several occasions. The funeral will be held Wednesday morning at nine o'clock. Burial will take place in Plainfield. Fayette Reunion.

ADMIRAL GEO. BROWN SPEAKS

Former residents of Rush and Fayette counties, living in Indianapolis held their annual reunion yesterday at Brookside Park, says the Indianapolis Star. Admiral George Brown of Indianapolis, who formerly lived in Rush county, was the principal speaker. He told of many incidents that occurred during his boyhood days and said that during his forty-eight years of service in the United States navy he never forgot Indiana. Other speakers were Vincent Clifford of Indianapolis and Frank Houston of Fayette county. Owing to a death in his family, Frank J. Hall of Rushville, Lieutenant-Governor, was unable to attend. James E. Watson, also of Rushville, former representative from the Sixth district, sent a letter expressing regret at being unable to attend. New officers elected were: Vincent G. Clifford, president; George H. Lail, vice president, and Charles F. Hurst, secretary-treasurer.

COMES BACK FOR SECOND ATTEMPT

Lone Burglar Frightened Away From Home of Mrs. Henry Taylor
Before Police Arrive.

HUSBAND DIED LAST WEEK

A lone burglar attempted to break into the home of Mrs. Henry Taylor in East Eighth street last night and the police were called, but trace of him has not been found. The police have a description of him as he was seen leaving the house when the first attempt was made. The same man, according to the police, was seen in the same vicinity after the attempt and it is the belief of Mrs. Taylor that he came back to make a second try at the job. Mrs. Taylor's husband died only last week and she lives alone with her five children. It is her opinion as well as that of the police that the burglar was someone who is familiar with the fact that a collection was taken for Mrs. Taylor last week and probably worked on the theory that it was being secreted in the house.

—Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Black of Muncie were the guests of her mother, Mrs. Mary Ford, yesterday.

NECESSARY TO CONFESS JESUS

The Rev. W. W. Orr Points Out Many Things That Christ Has Given Us.

RECORD CROWD HEARS SERMON

Says Laws of the Bible Are Plain and Must be Followed to be Saved.

A crowd estimated at anywhere from 2500 to 3000 heard the Rev. W. W. Orr last night. The large tabernacle failed to seat all the people and many were turned away. Standing room only was available and the exits were packed with men and women who could not get seats. Every available amount of space was taken and men even sat on the edge of the rostrum. It was generally conceded to be the largest crowd that ever attended a religious meeting in Rushville and the throng was made up not only of people from this city, but from all parts of the county. The crowd began to arrive as early as 6:30 o'clock and by seven o'clock the building was filled.

Before the arrival of the evangelist, the Rev. Mr. Jeffries called upon several from the audience and asked if they were thankful for anything that had taken place since the revival began. The ministers of the city and many others expressed themselves as being thankful for the great success of the meetings. Prof. Ross sang upon request "You Must Unload." He sang this one night last week and requests came from several places that he sing it last night.

The Rev. Mr. Orr stated that he was more than satisfied over the meetings of Sunday and expressed his appreciation of the support given. "We have just one more week in which to work together and how many of you will say that you will bring a sinner here this last week?" asked he. Many replied to the question and everything points toward a most successful week.

He stated that it was absolutely necessary to publicly confess Jesus in order to be saved. "You cannot find a man or woman in the Bible who did not confess Christ publicly. Even one of the thieves on the cross beside Christ confessed to Him," said the evangelist. The speaker quoted several passages of scripture to show that this is necessary. One of these passages was the 32d and 33d verses of the 10th chapter of St. Matthew, which is as follows: "Whosoever, therefore, shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before My Father, which is in heaven." "But whosoever shall deny Me before men, him will I also deny before My Father which is in heaven."

"Every lodge in the country tells its members that they can not live as well out of the order as they can in and it is the same with the church, you can not live as well out as you can in; this is His law and command and a man or woman can not be saved who deliberately and plainly breaks one of his plain commands," was his statement. Speaking of the great parade of children yesterday morning, the Rev. Mr. Orr said "Men's hearts were stirred by that great parade and demonstration. I would like to see the barkeepers and bartenders and their friends take out a crowd and give a parade. I challenge them; they can not do it. I do not wish to criticize the saloon keeper or the bartender, it is not their fault but the fault of you men who profess to be christians who voted them back to your city."

Continuing he said, "There will be no man in hell that God could have (Continued on Page Four.)"

LARGECROWD FOR SATURDAY NIGHT

Curiosity and Newness Has Ceased to be a Drawing Card at the Tabernacle.

THE DIFFICULTY IN BELIEVING

About Fifteen Persons Were Converted by the Sermon of the Rev. W. W. Orr.

Going to the tabernacle out of mere curiosity has ceased, as was shown by the large crowd that heard the Rev. W. W. Orr Saturday night. The newness has worn off, and, as was stated by the evangelist, there must be more than a passing interest or a religious meeting of this kind would not attract such an audience on Saturday night. The crowd compared favorably with any that has yet been present and the number of conversions were more than at any other meeting so far.

It is the intention of the evangelist to reach three classes of people in these meetings, and he explained the cards that are given to the converts to sign. The first class are those that have never surrendered to God and are joining church for the first time. The second class are those that belong to a church elsewhere but have never changed their membership to this city. The last are those that have been church members but were untrue to their vows and desire to make a new start. In this connection the Rev. Mr. Orr took occasion to praise the ministry of this city for the spirit they show. He stated that the ministers here were more united than at any place he had ever been and the convert was allowed to select his or her church that they wished to join, without any ill feeling among the preachers. As a general rule the preachers try to get as many additions as possible to the church each represents, but here it is not so.

Dwelling upon that clause of the 64th verse of the 6th chapter of the book of John, which says, "But there are some of you that believe not," the Rev. Orr showed that that truth existed even today. "People even in the time of Christ when he was performing miracles and doing other great things did not believe in him," said the speaker. Continuing he said, "There is surely something the matter when some of the most intelligent people of the city do not believe the gospel and how it can be I do not understand, yet it is true."

The first difficulty according to the minister is that the teachings of the Bible are misrepresented. The people listen to what the ministers preach and do not know for themselves. They take it for granted that the ministers know and that is enough, when they should read and investigate the Bible and not take the word of someone else. "People do not read the Bible but read the life of the minister and criticize him accordingly," was the statement of the minister.

Another difficulty why so many people do not believe the gospel is that so many of us that profess to believe it lead such imperfect lives. The unbelieving look at the church members and judge the Bible from them. In this connection he said, "We find people who profess to be Christians going to dances, some lead a double life, others are mixed up in the divorce courts and many will even go on a saloon keeper's bond. All of these people say, where is the difference? The unsaved reason that if the church is like they say it is, why don't they live that way. I tell you it is the church people who are in the way of Christ and no man falls deeper into hell than the man who stumbles over the inconsistent."

That it is necessary for us to read the Bible in order to understand its teachings was the next point brought out. Ignorance of the Bible on some people's part was shown to be one of the common difficulties for their not believing the word of God. The Rev. Mr. Orr stated that we can not read the Bible as we do other books. When we read a history or a novel we do not skip around, but start at the first and read to the end. So it is with the Bible, we should read it from the beginning and not jump from one part to another. Unless we know our Book we should not condemn as so many of the unbelieving do. "I was once talking to a man who professed to know the Bible and who said he had read it many times, but still did not believe it," said the evangelist, "and just to see if he really did know the book, I asked him who wrote the book of Sampson. After stammering an explanation that he could not just recall the author at that moment, I told him Sampson did not write a book and convinced him that he knew little or nothing of the Bible." Continuing he said, "so it is with a majority of the unbelieving, they profess to know a great deal when in reality they are ignorant."

"There are people who will not read the Bible because they say there is a mystery in the book," said he, "and if there was no mystery I would not read it. If we understood it we would know as much as the men who wrote it, so why not accept the word of God and the mystery?" There are some who are conceited enough to believe they understand the gospel without reading the book. He stated that the men who reject Jesus only commit a deeper sin and the only real children of God are those that follow His law. "If you take sin out of a man's life, I believe he will go to heaven," said he. The people we find in penitentiaries and "red light" districts are not sincere, godly people, stated the speaker.

He declared that a sermon Robert Ingersoll once preached at the funeral of a relative was the most heartless thing he ever heard of. In this sermon he tried to console the family by telling them that the deceased was dead just like an ordinary animal and would have no hereafter. Ingersoll believed that you die like a dog or any other beast. "Would not you hate to think that your dead were in this kind of a state?" he asked. The kind of men like Ingersoll helped to make people doubt the Bible because they say how can the book be true when so many different religions are based on its teachings.

In closing he asked that all who were ready to accept the word of God to come forward and in all about 15 went to the front.

A slight disturbance occurred in the alley south of the tabernacle during the sermon and the evangelist stated that it was the first time in six months that he had been interrupted and hoped it would not occur again. The party or parties who disturbed the meeting did it no doubt out of thoughtlessness.

GHOULS AT WORK IN COUNTRY CEMETERY

Horrifying Discovery Made Near Plymouth.

Plymouth, Ind., June 19.—Various reports that grave robbers are at work in this vicinity have been given credence by an investigation conducted in the Stringer cemetery near this city. A few days ago an undertaker noticed that the grave of Mrs. Lotti Mosher, a young woman who was buried on May 19, had evidently been disturbed. He reported the matter to the authorities and to the relatives of the young woman and an investigation showed that the grave had been opened and a part of the coffin and rough box destroyed. The body had been shipped from South Bend, where death occurred, to this city and was wrapped in bandages as required by the state law. These the searchers found had been torn away and the woman's face and arms revealed. It is generally believed that the grave had been opened by robbers, since it was known that the young woman had valuable jewelry, although none was buried with the body.

SAY MOTHERS' PRAYERS HELPED

Men at Monster Meeting Relate How They Came to be Converted.

SOME PERSONAL EXPERIENCES

Rev. Cyrus Yocum Declares It Has Been Cry of Human Race for Personal God.

Men stood on their feet and told what Jesus Christ had done for them at the close of the monster men's meeting at the First Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon, which was addressed by the Rev. Cyrus Yocum of the Main Street Christian church. The "personal experience" feature of the meeting brought many soul stirring talks—men confessing what accepting Christ had done for them and telling of the things in their life that had conspired to make them Christians. Many attributed their conversion to the prayers of their mother.

In the beginning the Rev. Yocum announced that the message he had to bring was one that could be heard by women as well as men. He declared that it was a message of "dos" and not "don'ts."

The Rev. Mr. Yocum said that a part of his text, "Sir, we would see Jesus," had been the one cry of the human race for ages. It has always been the case, he declared, that the one appeal of man was for a personal God. The minister pointed out that his coming was prophesied a hundred years before his coming, which was not all that was expected. He described the Saviour's lowly birth as a babe in the manger. He pointed out that the cry of the Greeks, "We would see Jesus," was the expression of the longing of men and women since the beginning.

"Why is it that all men everywhere would see Jesus?" asked Mr. Yocum. He declared that they had the desire because of his unique personality. He is as truly God as he is man, and as truly man as he is God," was the assertion of the speaker. "Many men admit that he has a great personality, but that he is not the son of God, while others see him as the son of God but not the son of man," declared Mr. Yocum.

"I propose to study him first as man," said the minister. "Jesus says himself he is the son of man, a vital part of the race he would save. He came to earth to bear the evils of man. You say he is not man? He was weary even as you or I get weary, because his body was that of man."

"Jesus is not only the son of man, but also the son of God," he continued. "In Him all qualities are combined, all humanity is summed up. The criticisms of nineteen hundred years have been centered on Jesus, but not one sin in his life has ever been found and not one evil thought has been mentioned in connection with his name."

The Rev. Mr. Yocum declared that if Jesus is not God then he is the most marvelous man that ever existed. But Jesus is the son of God as well as the son of man, was the speaker's assertion. In Jesus God and man meet, Mr. Yocum declared, as He is the highest ideal of God and man as well. The speaker asserted that if Jesus is not all that he claims, then he is the greatest impostor and the biggest liar ever known to man. He pointed out that Jesus had the power to stop the winds and waves; to cause lame men to walk, and to raise the dead from the graves.

The Rev. Mr. Yocum declared that sin separates God from man and causes death. He said that Jesus came to save sin and that he removes the penalty of sin as well as the sin itself. "If the man is not saved from sin he can not be saved from the penalty," said Mr. Yocum.

"In His three years of ministry," continued the speaker, "Jesus did more for man than all other men have been able to do." He declared that Ingersoll and other infidels hoisted at Christ, but that they should prove that they were sincere by being able to transfer a drunkard in the gutter into a God fearing man as Jesus has done.

Evangelist Orr Believes Christian Motherhood is the Highest Type of Christian Womanhood.

THE TABERNACLE IS CROWDED

Says Good Character is Her Capital
in Trade—Good Woman, Country's Hope.

Declaring that a Christian child is seldom ever found in a home without a Christian mother, The Rev. W. W. Orr addressed the women's mass meeting at the tabernacle yesterday afternoon on the topic, "God's Ideal Woman." The building was crowded with women, which caused the evangelist to comment that there were a lot of women who had not been attending the revival, since there had always been a number of men in the audiences when the tabernacle was not full.

At the close of the meeting the evangelist earnestly pleaded with the women to accept the Christian religion for their husbands' and children's sake. He said that woman rises infinitely higher than man and is second only to God for influences for good. He asserted that their influence in a home was largely responsible for the good or bad of the home and he urged for that reason that they all be Christians.

"Women are the most important factor in life," declared the evangelist. "They set the pace for Rushville, and if they are all better women, Rushville will be raised to a higher plane. Give your hearts to God and make Rushville better."

Evangelist Orr likened them to two women from the Bible, declaring that one rejected the offer of half a kingdom to gratify spite, while the other sacrificed her very life to save her people. Esther, he said, was self-sacrificing and thought of others, while Salome was different. She consulted her mother, who, in order to satisfy her envy, told her daughter to ask for the head of John the Baptist, and the wish was granted.

He declared that woman is much higher spiritually than man and that she is second only to God for good works. He declared that a good woman is even better than an angel. At the same time he declared that a bad woman is second only to the devil as a power for evil. The evangelist said that God's ideal woman was not one that is pictured in the Ladies Home Journal and in novels of today.

First of all, he said, a good woman is a willing worker. There is no room for anyone, man or woman, who will not work, was his assertion. He paid a compliment to the northern women by saying that they are better workers than women of the South. He asked if there were any women in the audience who started in the morning with a grumble and a groan; who complained about their husband's income.

"I am not going to give you any taffy, because you already have someone to tell you that," said the evangelist. "Woman should be an economical creature. A woman can throw out more with a spoon than a man can take in with a shovel. A daughter or wife who is not willing to live within the income of their father or husband is the cause of many a divorce. In the olden days the mother started in with almost nothing, and now the daughter must begin where the mother leaves off. That's the reason so many of you people are not married. A man with a small income can't keep a woman the way she expects to be kept. He's afraid of the bills. Some men just literally eat up their wives the first few months and later he wishes he had done it. Any woman can lead a man, but she can't drive a man that's any account."

He said that all families should live within their means. He drew two pictures—one family which spends money and is in debt at the end of the month and the other which buys sparingly and has a sum laid by for a rainy day. He had pity for any man or woman who buys on the installment plan. He told the women that it would make their husbands lose all of their self respect.

He said that God's ideal woman is a good housekeeper. "Woman is the queen of our home," he continued. "Man may be the head of the house, but woman is the heart. Lots of people are in the insane hospital because their head is wrong, but their heart is all right. It is the one thing woman was made for—to have charge of the home. So often the devil gets in when you live in boarding houses. Demand that you have a home. It doesn't take fine furnishings and pictures to make one. The men should stay at home, I know that, but you women keep them nice and they will. I know women who have 'clubbed' their husbands to death."

"And the ideal woman is virtuous. Chastity is next to religion. Character is her capital in trade and not her good form, good clothes, popularity and beauty. She had rather be dead than have a questionable character. I once knew a woman who said she could not raise boys without swearing at them. God pity such a woman."

The evangelist declared that the ideal woman should be chaste in dress and that she should never lead man into temptation. He dwelt on the evils of the dance for a time, saying that often boys were ruined as the result of being tempted at a ball. He said that woman should be chaste in speech and behavior as well, for often men are prone to take liberties that they are granted in the dance hall. Character once gone, he said, it is gone forever. He deplored the fact that a different standard of morality was set for man and woman. He said that it was a startling fact that women were not as particular in choosing their company as is a man.

The evangelist said that God's ideal woman should be a loving creature and that she was never created to rule the home. He said that love was like a fire, that it could not be kept burning without adding more fuel. He wondered why young married couples should be so considerate of one another during their honeymoon and then settle down afterward like two old trudge horses, each pulling on their side of the tongue. He declared that a married woman should not only love her husband, but that she should tell him so every day. That recipe, he said, would keep away afflictions, trouble, divorce and hell. The Rev. Mr. Orr asserted that woman can make man the biggest fool in the world about her if she is not married to a dog.

"Lastly," he said, "God's ideal woman fears the Lord. It is the very highest glory of woman. It is a most natural thing in the world for her to turn her back on Christ. The hope of the country is in its good women and the salvation of the home depends on you. If the wife is not a Christian, it is a safe guess that the husband is not. Christian motherhood is the highest type of Christian womanhood."

SAY-SO MEETING BRINGS TEARS

Parents and Children, Friends and Appreciation.

ALABASTER BOX IS BROKEN

Evangelist Urges Flowers be Strewn in Path of Living and Not on Dead's Graves.

Never before in Rushville was there such a public manifestation of good will, fellowship and loving brotherhood as was exhibited at the "Say-so" meeting at the tabernacle yesterday morning. Mothers wept on the necks of their children, sons and daughters went to their mothers and fathers and publicly expressed their gratitude and appreciation for their kindnesses and help; men went to their benefactors, took them firmly by their hand and gave vent to their feelings; brothers and sisters cried in each others arms as they did when they were infants; friends clasped hands in brotherly affection and husbands kissed and embraced their wives as a public manifestation of their appreciation of their mate's assistance in the battles, trials and tribulations that they have undergone together.

The whole audience was moved to tears at the close of the service, so truthfully and so vividly had the Rev. Mr. Orr pictured the duties of every man, woman and child in Rushville. He preached effectually the old truth that the flowers should be strewn in the path of the living rather than on the graves of the dead. He reiterated that the worst hypocrite outside of hell is the man who throws bouquets on his friend's grave and has not a word of encouragement for him while he's on this earth.

He exhorted with tear-stained eyes and quivering voice that boys and girls go to their fathers and mothers and say if they had appreciated what their parents had done for them. He said that so many were the sons and daughters who played the piano and went about on the streets to degradation and ruin, while their mother drudged at home to make life easy for her children. He asked how many boys there were who had ever said a word of kind appreciation to their father or their mother. He asked how many of them had ever worked to help lift the burden of those who had given them life.

Then Evangelist Orr questioned how many sons and daughters had allowed their parents to go down to an early grave without ever letting them know by word or deed that they loved them and that they admired and esteemed them above anything else on earth. He recalled how often he had seen children weep and cry over their parent's dead bodies and say complimentary things of their virtues when they had never mentioned them while their dear ones were on earth.

The Rev. Mr. Orr took for the text of his sermon the story of the breaking of the alabaster box over the head of Jesus by Mary during a feast at Simon's house. He told that old Bible tale in the common language of today and made it so realistic that it was easy to be understood. He described the purchase of the box at the village drug store, as he thought must have been the case. He recalled how Mary broke the box over Jesus' head, poured the ointment on his head and then dried them with her hair. "The house was permeated with the ointment and the odor of it has come down to this day," he declared.

The evangelist dwelt upon the gift for a time. He said that Mary might have purchased a cheaper ointment, or that she even might have saved the box, but she broke that over Jesus' head. He said the lesson it taught was that God wants, appreciates and deserves the best we have to give. He declared that so many people wanted to go to heaven on a scalper's ticket. The evangelist said that he wanted to see more young people break the alabaster box of their young lives over the head of the world. The best time to get right with God is in your youth, he said. He asserted that the theory that every young man must "sew his wild oats" and straighten up later was propagated in hell to injure the work of God.

The evangelist declared that people had no time during the day for the worship of God. You merchants can't close your stores for an hour in the morning to attend these meetings. Evangelist Orr referred to the giving of money for the good of Christianity. He recalled how the average collection box was filled with "chicken feed," and a stray dollar which blushed because it felt out of place. "The blood-bought church of God has done more good than any institution in the world and why should you dole out your pennies?" he asked.

The evangelist mentioned briefly bazaars, oyster suppers, ice cream festivals which church women give to raise funds for the houses of worship. He said he despised the practice. He said the women were forced to do that because their husbands were so stingy. The evangelist pointed out that many a man came away from a church supper singing songs and feeling like he had been doing good. "They think they have been helping the church," he shouted, "but they have been feeding a hog. The same meal at a hotel would have cost them a dollar. I am not criticizing you women. I don't know what we men would do without the women."

Evangelist Orr declared that people are always disposed to give the church the least they have. He illustrated the point by a farmer and his boys. The good healthy boy the farmer intended to make a farmer out of him. The bright boy of the family was to be a law student, and the measly, sickly boy of the family, the evangelist said, the farmer intended to make a preacher out of him. Invariably the runt of the family was intended for the ministry, he said. "He gave us the best we have and should we not give Him the best of everything we have?" asked Mr. Orr.

Returning to the text of his sermon, Evangelist Orr said Mary's motive of breaking the alabaster box over Jesus' head was first gratitude and secondly love. He asserted that Mary was grateful because Jesus had brought Lazarus back to life. He spoke of the wonderful qualities of love and said that all must do something, no matter how great or small, for the Savior. He said that the boy or girl can do much for Christ.

Lastly the evangelist declared that Mary's reward was first grumbling and growling from Judas, who, as treasurer, wanted the money spent for the ointment on the poor so that he could extract a part of it for his own use. He said that was the trouble with most Judases in this day and age—they wanted a grab at the treasury. The evangelist declared that most people who do the best they can for the church will be criticized by the long faced fellows. He warned them not to pay attention to criticism. He branded such fellows as thieves, saying that they robbed the door of good of his joys.

Evangelist Orr said that Mary's reward was also the kind words which Jesus gave her when he said let her alone, for wherever the gospel is preached that story will be told. The evangelist pointed out that glory soon fades and that people and their characteristics are soon forgotten. "What you do for yourself will soon perish," he asserted, "but that which you do for others will never die."

At the beginning of the meeting Jesse Pugh sang and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ross sang a duet. A regular Sunday morning collection was taken, the money in envelopes to go to the churches designated and the loose change to be divided equally among the churches.

NECESSARY TO CONFESS CHRIST

saved. He has done and continues to do everything that He can do to save you. If a man or woman will not give up sin there is no wisdom in the divine praying to save them. God never intended for you to go to hell and has done many things to keep you from going there. Death is the wages of sin and if you do not give up sin you can never be saved. The first thing between every man and hell is the cross. The Father stands at Calvary and says 'Turn ye, turn ye, or you die.'

"Another of the great things God has given us is a conscience. A man's conscience condemns him for his wrongs and helps him feel his guilt. God put it in man because he wanted him to feel his sins. Beasts have no conscience for they have no need for it, but with man, it is there for a purpose and has saved many from hell.

"Why did He give us the Bible? Because it stands for the word of God and must be followed by us. There is a warning from sin on every page and still some of us are on the road to hell when we could be saved.

"God also gave us friends. Friends some time have a great influence on the life of a man. They influence you to do better and give up sin. There are some of you here in this audience who promised your friends on their death-bed that you would meet them in heaven. It is up to you to keep your promise.

"You have heard hundreds and hundreds of sermons, but still you do not heed. He has placed this tabernacle between the people of Rushville and hell, but in spite of this and all the sermons there are yet many unsaved.

"The Sabbath day was given you to be observed. The Sabbath means all that is sacred. I was in Chicago one Sunday and walked down State street. During a week day it would be necessary to almost fight my way through the crowd, so great is the traffic. But on this Sunday I had the sidewalk almost to myself. All the great stores were closed and the people generally seemed to be observing the Sabbath."

"If Satan has full sway over man he eventually gets in bad. God never put a man in jail or the pen. It is always the work of the devil. I once paid a visit to a jail and before I left a murderer confessed God and was saved. Sin is in our way that we may be converted. It is necessary in many instances for some one dear to us to make a sacrifice in order to save us. God has done everything he can, what more can he do? But in spite of this we are not saved.

"Your father may turn you from his door, but your mother never will. There is no heart that can love like a mother's. I once knew a son who quarreled with his father and was ordered from home. The mother made several efforts to get her husband to let him come back but was not successful until she was on her death bed. She made a sacrifice to save her husband and son; she had to die to make friends of the father and son. The mother never went back on her son and mothers never do.

An aftermeeting was held after the regular services and in all twenty-two people went forward and confessed Christ.

SAY SHE WILL NOT BE A CANDIDATE

ination. "Count me out," he said. "I have heard a number of good men spoken of for the nomination, but as far as I have observed no one is beating the bushes."

"Are the Indiana Democrats in good condition for a fight?"

"It looks very much," said Mr. Watson, "is if they are about to get into a terrible row over the gubernatorial nomination of their party. I have nosed around Indianapolis a good deal lately and I am convinced that the Taggart-Fairbanks combination, which is very strong in Democratic State politics, is preparing to throw Sam Ralston and nominate Billy O'Brien. That is a very potential crowd and probably can put O'Brien across.

"But no one need imagine for a minute that Sam Ralston will tamely submit to being road-rollered in any such fashion. He will make a bitter fight for the nomination, and as he has a great many personal friends there will be blood on the Democratic moon before the thing is over. Taggart and Fairbanks would be a good deal stronger, but Steve has so far refused to come into their camp.

Steve is a hustler and is the equal of the next one in mapping out a political campaign."

Mr. Watson predicted that Finly H. Gray, representative from the district which he (Watson) so long represented in Congress will be left at home next year.

"Finly has made a mistake, or rather a series of mistakes," said he, "in getting out of joint with his party in the House. The Democrats over the district are beginning to abuse him for jumping the Democratic caucus. When that kind of a sentiment gets generally disseminated among the Democrats of the district it will be good-by Finly."

"Why don't you run for Congress against Finly?" was asked.

"For the simple reason," said the erstwhile whip of the national house, "that I probably would be licked to a frazzle. I am out of joint with the insurgency, and I stand for things that are not popular at this time. I am for ship subsidy. I am for a protective tariff that really protects. I am against the modern idea of conservation run to seed. I believe it is our duty, instead of looking up our national resources, to develop them and make the country blossom as a rose.

"That's my ticket, but the probability is I wouldn't get many votes on that platform. In this day and age whenever somebody proposes to build a railroad into undeveloped territory an effort is made to send him to the penitentiary."

"Do you hear much talk in Indiana about the Indiana delegation for its stand in favor of a tariff on wool?"

Mr. Watson formerly served on the Ways and Means committee and has given a good deal of study to the tariff.

"Say," he replied with a merry laugh, "the boys on the Indiana delegation are human enough to enjoy a little taste of protection when they can get it. When the campaign is on they lambast us Republicans unmercifully because we uphold and justify what they call in campaign times 'the iniquitous protective system,' but when the campaign is over they pass up their plates for a little of the iniquity and they find it tastes good.

"Did you ever know the like of it before? Of course, there is no ground on the earth by which a Democratic representative can justify a vote in favor of a tariff on wool. Even Grover Cleveland, who was so roundly condemned by the Bryanites as an alleged tool of the special interests, turned his face resolutely against a tariff on wool, and the Wilson bill, passed during his term, put wool on the free list. Any tariff whatever on wool, even if it be no more than half a cent a pound, is a protective tariff, and it is a huge joke to try to justify it on the assumption that it is a tariff for revenue only.

"As a protectionist, I would have been glad to vote for the tariff on wool which the Indiana boys are so laboriously defending, but it is surprising to me that they, as Democrats, should attempt to justify it."

Mr. Watson declares that while the country is still insurgent "the wave of radicalism" is receding somewhat.

"To prove that statement," said he, "it is only necessary to consult the chautauqua managers. I was in Chicago a few days ago and had a talk with two of the best known chautauqua managers in the country.

They told me that there is not the same demand for radical speakers on the lyceum platform there used to be. People no longer care to hear them, as they once did. To my mind

I find a growing sentiment for Wilson and Kern, and I believe it will prevail when the Democrats come together to name their ticket."

this is very significant, for if there is one place on earth where the expounder of insurgency shines better than elsewhere, it is on the chautauqua platform.

"The of falling prices for farm products is tending to give a check to insurgency. The farmer is getting less and less for his products and he is beginning to yearn for the quiet stability of the old times."

"Who will be the Democratic leaders in next year's presidential race?"

"It looks to me," said Mr. Watson, quickly, "as if the ticket will be Wilson and Kern. Here is every indication now that Wilson will be the nominee for President and the natural and obvious thing to do will be to renominate Kern for Vice President, since the geographical location is ideal and because there is certain strength he has in having been the unsuccessful candidate for Vice President in 1908. Everywhere I go

I find a growing sentiment for Wilson and Kern, and I believe it will prevail when the Democrats come together to name their ticket."

AMUSEMENTS

The Airdome will have a complete change of program tonight.

The Portola will have a complete change of program tonight.

The Palace will be open all of this week and as a opener will show a Biograph and an Edison film. The Biograph, "In the Day of '49" is a story of the days of that exciting period when men were wont to rush from place to place in their mad lust for gold. It is a very thrilling picture. The Edison, "How Spriggins Took Lodgers" is a film in which the fun comes fast and furious and every character is a type. A new illustrated song will be sung.

The Vaudet will offer an excellent program this evening with a Biograph and an Imp film. "Second Sight" is a pathetic and dramatic story, in which the perfidious lover finally becomes the real hero of the romance. One is made insanely jealous by his rival's exhibition of a picture which he purports was given to him by the girl they both love. The resulting complications are interesting and at times thrilling. "A Child's Impulse" is a Biograph drama which is said to be up to the standard of other films shown here by that company. Leon Maxey will sing, "My Rose From the Garden of Love."

The Sangers Combined Shows exhibit the only great blue-faced rib-nosed baboon in captivity. It is a giant in size, and is possessed of the strength of a hundred men. Decked with rare tints, with gorgeous colors and with indescribable hues, he grins at the startled thousands, a degenerate man or a redeemed brute which is he? Scientists have not answered the question. He has passed through training school for animals and has thrown aside many antics and notions of the brute creation and taken on many antics idiosyncracies of finite man. He is at once a wonder and a mystery, and his queer grimaces and wise expressions provoke smiles and serious reflections from the simple minded and the philosophical. To see this rare freak of nature is never to forget it.

Sangers Combined Shows will be here Wednesday, June 21.

CHAPTER XXX.

In Christie's Room.

Keith swept his glance up and down the street without results. Surely Hawley and his companion could not have disappeared so suddenly. They had turned to the right, he was certain as to that, and he pushed through the crowd of men around the theater entrance, and hastened to overtake them. He found nothing to overtake—nowhere along that stretch of street, illumined by window lights, was there any sign of a man and woman walking together. He stopped, bewildered, staring blindly about, failing utterly to comprehend this mysterious vanishing. What could it mean? What had happened? How could they have disappeared so completely during that single moment he had waited to speak to Fairbairn? The man's heart beat like a trip-hammer with apprehension, a sudden fear for Hope taking possession of him. Surely the girl would never consent to enter any of those dens along the way, and Hawley would not dare resort to force in the open street. The very thought seemed preposterous, and yet, with no other supposition possible, he entered these one after the other in hasty search, questioning the inmates sharply, only to find himself totally baffled—Hawley and Hope had vanished as though swallowed by the earth. He explored dark passage-ways between the scattered buildings, rummaging about recklessly, but came back to the street again without reward.

Could they have gone down the other side, in the deeper shadows, and thus reached the hotel more quickly than it seemed to him possible? There was barely a chance that this could be true, and yet Keith grasped at it desperately, cursing himself for having wasted time. Five minutes later, breathless, almost speechless with anxiety, he startled the clerk.

"Has Miss Waite come in? Miss Hope Waite?"

"Blamed if I know," retorted the other, indifferently. "Can't for the life of me tell those two females apart. One of them passed through 'bout ten minutes ago; Doc Fairbairn was with her. Another party just went upstairs hunting Miss MacLaire, and as they haven't come down, I reckon it must have been her—anything wrong?"

"I'm not sure yet," shortly. "Who was this other person?"

"Old fellow with white hair and whiskers—swore like a pirate—had the sheriff along with him."

It came to Keith in a flash—it was Waite. Perhaps Christie knew. Perhaps the General knew. Certainly something of importance was crystallizing in the actress' room which might help to explain all else. He rushed up the stairs, barely waiting to rap once at the closed door before he pressed it open. The sight within held him silent, waiting opportunity to blurt out his news. Here, also, was tragedy, intense, compelling, which for the instant seemed to even overshadow the fate of the girl he loved. There were three men present, and the woman. She stood clutching the back of a chair, white-faced and open-eyed, with Fairbairn slightly behind her, one hand grasping her arm, the other clinched, his jaw set pugnaciously. Facing these two was Waite, and a heavily built man wearing a brown beard, closely trimmed.

"You'd better acknowledge it," Waite snapped out, with a quick glance at the newcomer. "It will make

A HARMLESS WAY TO DARKEN THE HAIR

A Little Sage and Sulphur
Makes Gray Hair Vanish—A Remedy for All Hair Troubles

Who does not know the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many scalp specialists to be connected with loss of color and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably, there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than sage and sulphur, if properly prepared. The Wreth Chemical Company of New York put up an ideal remedy of this kind, called Wreth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, and authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

Special Agents, Hargrove and Mullin, Druggists, Rushville, Indiana.

It all the easier for you. I tell you this is the sheriff, and we've got you both dead to rights."

"But," she urged, "why should I be arrested? I have done nothing."

"You're an adventuress—a damn adventuress—Hawley's mistress, probably—a—"

"Now, see here, Waite," and Fairbairn swung himself forward, "you drop that. Miss MacLaire is my friend, and if you say another word I'll smash you, sheriff or no sheriff."

Waite glared at him.

"You old fool," he snorted, "what have you got to do with this?"

"I've got this to do with, you'll find—the woman is to be treated with respect or I'll blow your damned obstinate head off."

The sheriff laid his hand on Waite's shoulder.

"Come," he said, firmly, "this is no way to get at it. We want to know certain facts, and then we can proceed lawfully. Let me question the woman."

The two older men still faced one another belligerently, but Keith saw Christie draw the doctor back from between her and the sheriff.

"You may ask me anything you please," she announced, quietly. "I am sure these gentlemen will not fight in my room."

"Very well, Miss MacLaire. It will require only a moment. How long have you known this man Hawley?"

"Merely a few days—since I arrived in Sheridan."

"But you were in communication with him before that?"

The pleasant voice and quiet demeanor of the sheriff seemed to yield the girl confidence and courage.

"Yes, he had written me two or three letters."

"You met him here then by appointment?"

"He was to come to Sheridan, and explain to me more fully what his letters had only hinted at."

"You possessed no previous knowledge of his purpose?"

"Only the barest outline—details were given me later."

"Will you tell us briefly exactly what Hawley told you?"

The girl's bewildered eyes wandered from face to face, then returned to the waiting sheriff.

"May—may I sit down?" she asked.

"Most certainly; and don't be afraid, for really we wish to be your friends."

She sank down into the chair, and even Keith could see how her slender form trembled. There was a moment's silence.

"Believe me, gentlemen," she began, falteringly, "if there is any fraud, any conspiracy, I have borne no conscious part in it. Mr. Hawley came to me saying a dying man had left with him certain papers, naming one, Phyllis Gale, as heiress to a very large estate in North Carolina, left by her grandfather in trust. He said the girl had been taken West, when scarcely two years old, by her father in a fit of drunken rage, and then deserted by him in St. Louis."

"You—you saw the papers?" Waite broke in.

"Yes, those that Hawley had; he gave them to me to keep for him."

She crossed to her trunk, and came back, a manilla envelope in her hand. Waite opened it hastily, running his eyes over the contents.

"The infernal scoundrel!" he exclaimed, hotly. "These were stolen from me at Carson City."

"Let me see them." The sheriff ran them over, merely glancing at the endorsements.

"Just as you represented, Waite," he said, slowly. "A copy of the will, your commission as guardian, and memoranda of identification. Well, Miss MacLaire, how did you happen to be so easily convinced that you were the lost girl?"

"Mr. Hawley brought me a picture which he said was of this girl's half-sister; the resemblance was most startling. This, with the fact that I have never known either father or mother or my real name, and that my earlier life was passed in St. Louis, sufficed to make me believe he must be right."

"You—you—" Waite choked, leaning forward. "You don't know your real name?"

"No, I do not," her lips barely forming the words. "The woman who brought me up never told me."

"Who—who was the woman?"

"A Mrs. Raymond—Sue Raymond—she was on the stage, and died in Texas—San Antonio, I think."

Waite swore audibly, his eyes never once deserting the girl's face.

"Hawley told you to say that?"

"No, he did not," she protested warmly. "It was never even mentioned between us—at least, not Sue Raymond's name. What difference can that make?"

He stepped forward, one hand flung out, and Fairbairn sprang instantly between them, mistaking the action.

"Hands off there, Waite," he commanded, sternly. "Whatever she says goes."

"You blundering old idiot," the other exploded. "I'm not going to hurt her; stand aside, will you!"

He reached the startled girl, thrust aside the dark hair combed low over the neck, swung her about toward the light, and stared at a birthmark behind her ear. No one spoke, old

Keith straightened up, looking directly into the fierce questioning eyes.

Waite seemingly stricken dumb, the woman shrinking away from him as though she feared he was crazed.

"What is it?" asked the sheriff, sternly.

Slowly Waite turned about and faced him, running the sleeve of his coat across his eyes. He appeared dazed, confounded.

"My God, it's all right," he said, with a choke in the throat. "She's—she's the girl."

Christie stared at him, her lips parted, unable to grasp what it all meant.

"You mean I—I am actually Phyllis Gale? That—that there is no mistake?"

He nodded, not yet able to put it more clearly into words. She swayed as though about to faint, and Fairbairn caught her, but she slipped through his arms, and fell upon her knees, her face buried in her hands upon the chair.

"Oh, thank God," she sobbed, "thank God! I know who I am! I know who I am!"

MADERO NOT GOING TO HAVE CLEAR SAILING

Formidable Opposition to His Candidacy Appears.

Monterey, Mex., June 19.—A sensation has been caused in political circles over the country by the suddenly developed and widespread movement to run General Trevino of Monterey, commander of this military zone, for the presidency in opposition to Francisco I. Madero, jr. While Trevino has made no expression of his views on the subject, it is reported by his close friends that he is a receptive candidate and stands ready to enter vigorously into the campaign if the movement becomes of sufficient popularity to indicate that he has a chance of success.

General Trevino is a bitter personal and political foe of Bernardo Reyes. It was Trevino who carried out Diaz's order ousting Reyes from the governorship of Nuevo Leon, two years ago. He is eighty-one years old, but is vigorous in mind and body. His first wife was a daughter of the late General Ord of the United States army.

Former Governor Richard Yates will depart for Washington early in the week, prepared to testify before the Lorimer investigating committee. He said he had not been served with a formal subpoena, but had received a telegram from the chairman of the investigating committee.

He hinted his testimony might be productive of an explosion in Illinois Republican politics.

Fitzsimmons was jammed beneath the car, which turned turtle, and received a bad cut on his right leg. Mrs. Fitzsimmons escaped safely.

Suggests Homes For Children.

Doesn't Deny the Charge.

Bloomington, Ind., June 19.—On a charge of deserting his children in Cleveland, O., Dennis Weir, leading man with the Devere Stock company, was arrested here. Weir does not deny the charge and says he will return to Ohio and straighten up his troubles.

THE GRAND JURY MAKES A REPORT

Indictments Charge Kidnapping
at Indianapolis.

ECHO OF THE McNAMARA CASE

Detective Burns and the Arresting Officer From Los Angeles Who Took Officer of the Structural Iron Workers From Indianapolis Are Charged With Kidnapping in Indictments Returned in the Latter City.

Indianapolis, June 19.—On charges of kidnapping John J. McNamara, secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, from this city, Detective W. J.
Burns and James Hossick, a city detective of Los Angeles, Cal., were indicted, and McNamara was indicted on charges of conspiracy to dynamite.
Three indictments are against Mc-Namara, who is in jail in Los Angeles.
One charges him with "conspiracy to dynamite industrial work of the Peoria and Pekin Union railroad at Peoria, Ill.," and the other two are said to be for storing dynamite in this city.
Five indictments are against Detective Burns, who is under $10,000 bail,
and Detective Hossick of Los Angeles,
who has not been arrested.

The grand jury reported that it found no evidence to sustain the charges of kidnapping against Walter Drew of New York, counsel for the National Erectors' association; J. A.
G. Badorf, Drew's assistant; W. J.
Ford, assistant district attorney of Los Angeles county, California, and Frank P. Fox of this city, the chauffeur who drove the car in which McNamara was taken from this city to Chicago, all of whom were arrested here and held to the grand jury for investigation.

Governor Marshall, who honored the request for McNamara, "acted clearly within the law and did, in the premises, what he should have done," according to the grand jury's report.

City Judge Collins, before whom McNamara was taken, and the Indianapolis police officers connected with the case, were absolved from blame or wrongdoing by the grand jury.

ON THE ANXIOUS SEAT

Prospective Hosts of the President Waiting Official Word.

Indianapolis, June 19.—A conference of the various organizations planning to take part in the Fourth of July celebration will be called by the Marion club as soon as definite information is received from Washington regarding the president's visit. The president will be asked to take part in so many celebrations during the day that it is believed the best way to arrange the details of his visit is to call a general meeting.

Members of the clubs are at a loss to know why official word regarding the president's trip to Indianapolis has not been sent them from the Washington authorities. With the Fourth but two weeks away, those planning the Taft entertainment are on the anxious seat.

A LONE ROBBER

Cracked Postoffice Safe in an Indiana
Town and Got Away.

Noblesville, Ind., June 19.—The postoffice at Atlanta, in the northern part of this county, was robbed.
There is evidence showing that the job was done by one man. He cracked the safe and got away with $350.74 in 1- and 2-cent stamps, $70 in cash and $95 in money orders.

Former Alderman Confessed.

Indianapolis, June 19.—John P.
Wood, former member of the Indianapolis city council, pleaded guilty to the charge of grand larceny and was fined $1 and costs and sentenced to serve from one to fourteen years in the Michigan City prison. He admitted he stole $70 after selling real estate to which he had no title.

Thousands Witness Electrocuting.

Logansport, Ind., June 19.—For twenty minutes William Blake, a telephone wire repairer, hung head downward, slowly choking in a network of electric wires while 5,000 people watched his struggles. Although 2,200 volts passed through his body, he was rescued alive, but died soon afterward.

Another Charge Remains.

Wabash, Ind., June 19.—The jury which heard the case of John Schuster, charged with having burned his hotel at Lafontaine, was discharged after having been out for over thirty hours without an agreement. Another charge of arson will be placed against Schuster.

It Wasn't Ptomaine Poisoning.

Evansville, Ind., June 19.—Two physicians who attended Charles Benedict during the illness which resulted in his death have signed certificates saying he was not the victim of ptomaine poisoning. It was reported he had been poisoned by canned tomatoes.

Auto Jumped From Bridge.

Bloomington, Ill., June 19.—Louis
Orr of Dwight was killed and Arthur Kern seriously injured when their automobile jumped from a bridge.

THE TAFTS' SILVER WEDDING

Reception to Be Given at the Historic Mansion Tonight Will Be Unique in the Annals of the National Capital—Five Thousand Invited Guests Expected to Make the Affair Notable—Splendid Collection of Presents.

Washington, June 19.—It is quite apparent that the Taft silver wedding reception at the White House tonight is going to be unique in the annals of the national capital. Miles of wire have been strung around the lawns and gardens and socketed with thousands of electric lights that will shed their radiance on the 5,000 guests expected to attend the function.

"A man has only one silver wedding anniversary," said the president the other day in chatting with a friend.
It is with this in his mind that Mr.
Taft has given orders that everything possible be done to add to the pleasure of the thousands of guests who will greet him tonight and that has caused him to exercise personal supervision over the many details of the arrangements for the occasion.

The illumination of the White House and grounds will be the most elaborate ever attempted. The historic structure itself will be outlined in streaks of fire; thousands of incandescent lamps will glow in the oaks and elms, strung about the executive mansion, flooding the lawns with light, and searchlights on the roofs of the state, war and navy buildings will throw colored beams of light on the playing fountain directly in front of the great porte cochere of the White House.

Practically all the preliminaries have been completed. The lawns have been newly clipped, the trees and shrubbery trimmed, the stand for the marine band completed and the covered canopy under which the president and Mrs. Taft will stand to receive their guests, made ready and decorated for the occasion. This afternoon the White House conservatories practically were cleaned out and the interior of the White House decorated with wagon loads of cut flowers. The shops of Washington have been swept clean of Japanese globes, have been strung in a great square around the ground just inside the iron fence that will divide the guests from the interested public.
Dozens of tables scattered here and there among the trees will bear the bowls of punch and light refreshments. On the lawn the marine band will play. In the east room the engineers' band will serve the dancers. It will be a long remembered outdoor fete if the fickle weather of Washington holds kind and true.

President Taft is frankly concerned about every detail. The presents which have been sent to the president and Mrs. Taft form the most splendid collection of silver Washington has ever seen. They are banked in the red room of the White House, and the pile grows higher and higher every hour. Some of these gifts have come from foreign countries, but the great majority of them were given by friends in Washington. The presents which were sent by organizations are particularly handsome. Presents by the United States senate, the three dozen silver plates from the house of representatives and the silver service from the United States supreme court are the first gifts ever made by these bodies to an individual, be he president or private citizen.

From Cincinnati, the home of the Tafts, have come numerous presents.
The Commercial club of that city,
which has come in a body to attend the celebration, has sent a gorgeous collection of silver. The people of Maryland have presented a silver punch bowl, tray and ladle, while many organizations have remembered the distinguished couple with gifts.
The members of the cabinet sent individual presents, as have many others in Washington intimately associated with the Taft administration. The gift of the Psi Upsilon club, of which the president is a member, is a solid silver platter of antique design.

The Philippine party of 1905, called "The Tafters," presented two solid silver Grecian ewers, twenty inches in height, and a solid silver waiter. The Washington correspondents sent a solid silver fruit dish and the Gridiron club a solid silver pitcher and water set. The army officers in Washington who served with the president in the Philippines and Washington sent a unione solid silver piece.

The celebration began at noon today
when the president was entertained at the Chevy Chase club by the Commercial club of Cincinnati, composed of old-time friends of the Tafts. This party reached the city early this morning on a special and were hosts to the president at luncheon.

THREE VICTIMS OF AERIAL RACE

French Contest On Sunday
Marked By Tragedies.

DEADLY HAZARD OF FLIGHT

Two of the Unfortunate Aviators Were Burned to Death Beneath Wrecks
of Their Machines, While Another Was Dashed to Pieces Before the Gaze of 250,000 Horrified Spectators
—Another Falls and Is Injured.

Paris, June 19.—The Journal's aviation circuit race Sunday was attended by three tragedies. A crowd of 250,000 flocked to the Vincennes artillery field. There were 6,000 soldiers and 2,000 police on hand to hold the crowd in check. There were thirty-nine competitors.

LeMartin, who was the twenty-fifth to start, had hardly cleared the ground when the monoplane in which he was riding tossed terribly and the motor stopped. LeMartin began to descend and when within 150 feet of the ground, came headlong to the earth. He was killed almost instantly.

Another fatality occurred at Issy les Moulineaux. The carburettor of Princeteau's machine set fire to the ground. He noticed that his clothes were burning and began to descend from a height of seventy-five feet.
The machine landed abruptly on its right wing and then the gasoline tank exploded. The aviator's legs were caught between a part of the machine and the ground and he was powerless.
The spectators could not approach the wreck because of the fierce heat.
When they finally were able to quench the flames the body of the aviator was an unrecognizable mass of burned flesh.

Landron, in a monoplane, fell near Chateau Thierry. His machine took fire from an exploding petrol tank and Landron was burned to death. Lieutenant Gaubert, flying under the name of Daiger, fell near Soissons and was injured, but not dangerously.

Although the race was not scheduled to start until after 5 o'clock, there was considerable animation in the vicinity of Vincennes the entire night. Vincennes borders on a suburb of Paris that is inhabited by the lowest classes, and they made a hideous night of it. Lepine, who is held responsible by his enemies for the disaster at Issy, when Minister of War Bertheaux was killed and Premier Mo-ris severely hurt, took command at dawn. But with the most careful organization of the men under him the police were unable to withstand the crushing thousands. At 6:30 o'clock the official tribunes' hangars were invaded and the barriers completely demolished. Some extremely ugly rushes by the crowds had to be stopped forcibly by the cavalry.

PUSHING THE MEASURE

Governor of Illinois Determined to Carry on Finish Fight.

Springfield, Ill., June 19.—For the eventual enactment into law of the waterway bill as it came out of the senate, Governor Deneen is determined to fight to the finish.

"The senate bill, now before the house of representatives," said the governor, "is the measure which in my judgment answers the immediate requirements of the state and responds to the demands of the people of the state. It makes possible at once the conservation of the water power sites now in controversy and prepares the way for concurrent action of the federal government and the state of Illinois. I am hopeful that the senate bill will become a law."

The bill to which the governor referred in all of its substantial particulars is the original Johnson measure formulated by the legal advisers of the state administration. It received the unofficial approval of President Taft and was passed by the senate at the regular session by a vote of 39 to 0.
It died then in the house, making necessary the extraordinary session.

Sought Shelter in Barn.

Mt. Vernon, Ind., June 19.—What was hoped would prove a shelter from one of the hardest storms that has ever struck this vicinity proved to be a death trap for Ira Lewis, sixteen years old, who was instantly killed when a large barn was blown over.

Gentlemen:—
One cannot speak too highly of the Raymond Corn Cure. I have used nearly every corn cure that I could hear of. Some would give relief but no cure until a lady from Rushville told me about yours and gave me a bottle to use. She knows what wonders it did for me.
I have disposed of two of the bottles and still have one.

The cure is certain if directions are followed. I could not wear a decent shoe for over two years. Now I wear six and a half again with comfort.

DEMONSTRATE PHYSICAL SELF

Evangelist Preaches Convincing Sermon After Greatest Demonstration Ever Seen Here.

"Now listen, all of you boys and girls, tell me who knocked out Jim Jeffries," asked Evangelist Orr at the union meeting of the Sunday school at the Main Street Christian church after the parade, in attempting to demonstrate that boys and girls have four kinds of life, one of which is physical.

"Jack Johnson," was the almost unanimous answer from all parts of the house. The evangelist used several other illustrations to show that human beings have bodies which raises them above the level of the animals.

Such a demonstration as was made yesterday morning was never witnessed here before. It is estimated that there were twelve hundred in the procession that marched from the tabernacle to the Christian church. Little tots who could scarcely walk as well as grownups took part in the monster parade, which was headed by a brass band. Throngs of people gathered all along the line of march to view the spectacle. The procession was five blocks long, the Sunday school scholars walking two abreast and closely together.

The Rev. Mr. Orr made a wonderful and accurately clear argument for young people to lead Christian lives during the brief service at the church following the demonstration. A crowd of young people that has been estimated at sixty came forward and vowed to accept Christ as their Saviour. The class was taken to the basement of the church after the services, where they were given cards and a brief prayer service, conducted by the local ministers, was held.

"My soul has been stirred as it was never stirred before by this great demonstration this morning," said the Rev. Mr. Orr at the beginning. "I thought of the great possibilities that are wrapped up in these young people as I watched the procession pass. I hope that they will all give their hearts to Christ today."

In his brief sermon, which was convincing on account of its simplicity, and which was unique as he said, because "I will take no text," the evangelist pointed out that there are four kinds of life, physical, intellectual, moral and spiritual. He asked all of the boys to try their muscles to show that they have a physical self. He said that there was an old blind mule in his town which could knock Jack Johnson out the first round, to illustrate that all animals have physical life.

He asked the boys and girls several questions which they answered readily, he drawing the conclusion that they had intellectual life, which raised them above the plane of all animals. He started on the next subdivision by saying that all boys should swear, drink and gamble, but he was disputed by some of the boys in the audience. The evangelist declared that that was moral life which every boy and girl should have.

"The spiritual life," he declared, "is the highest type. You young people know that there are a lot of dead folks walking around town here? It is not the life you live here but that beyond the grave. It is the kind of life you will lead by accepting Christ."

The evangelist asserted that after life, came death. He said that young as well as old must face it some day and that if spiritual life is had, then there is no fear of death. He said that examination day or judgment comes after death. The evangelist said that if the boys and girls were all Christians that Jesus would answer their questions. The last division, he said, is eternity. He pointed out that that is a thing that never ends and that the human being is pushed on by an unseen hand until the body drops in the grave and the unseen hand keeps on pushing the soul to a life in heaven.

He stated that boys and girls should be Christians for three reasons: because Jesus commands it, because it is the best life they can lead and because they can lead many others to Christ which is the best reason of them all. He pointed out that there are three stipulations in becoming a Christian: take Jesus as their Saviour, confess Him and obey Him.

The Christian church Sunday school orchestra, converted into a band, led the procession. It is unique in that the orchestra members are versatile musicians. The trap drummer plays a tuba or bass, one violinist a baritone, and another the bass drum. After the parade the orchestra resumed its other instruments and played for the meeting. The Main Street Christian Sunday school, led by the pastor and superintendent followed the band; the First Presbyterian came next; the First Baptist next; the Salvation Army next; the Mission Sunday school next; the Methodist next and lastly the United Presbyterian. The schools were led by the church pastor and superintendents. The teachers accompanied their classes in the parade.

Some folks make great efforts to accumulate property—men spend a lifetime in making a fortune—all with a purpose.

Oftentimes this purpose is frustrated because it includes the accumulation of property, but does not include its disposition. The purpose to distribute one's property can be best carried out by a Will properly drawn by a competent attorney.

The selection of the Executor of your will is also important. We are authorized by law to act in the capacity of executor or trustee under wills.
